Italian premier calls vote

ROME (UPI) — Premier Mariano Rumor called today for a confidence vote on his plan to try to pull Italy out of financial chaos through a program of severe austerity and higher taxes on everything from gasoline to utilities.
Rumor and his patched-up cabinet reached the decision following a debate on the program which will make Italians pay more for just about everything.
"Grave sacrifices by the national community are required," Rumor said in introducing the measures.

Bhutto hooded

SAVAR, Bangladesh (UPI) — A crowd of 2,000 angry demonstrators jeered Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto today, shouting "killer Bhutto go back!" and "we condemn genocide!" during a ceremony for Bangladesh's war dead.

The demonstration at a wreath-laying ceremony at a memorial to the victims of the 1971 war of independence against Pakistan contrasted sharply with the cheers Bhutto received Thursday in Dhaka from several thousand supporters.

Namath files bubble-gum suit

By United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath filed a $750,000 suit in Brooklyn Federal Court Thursday charging a chewing gum company with unauthorized use of his picture on bubble gum wrappers and play cards.
Namath charged the Toppa Chewing Gum Co. had been using his picture since 1965 without his permission and said such unauthorized use endangered the income he receives from endorsing other products.

Israeli PM warns long war

By United Press International
ISRAELI Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin warned his country today to be prepared for a long, drawn-out war against Arab guerrillas instead of expecting a blow-for-blow policy of counter-strikes for single Palestinian attacks.
"We see our activities against terror as a continual war," Rabin told newsmen in Tel Aviv before taking off on an El Al flight to London, where he is to attend an international Socialist conference.

Nurses call off strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Striking nurses have voted overwhelmingly to return to work today at 41 private hospitals and clinics in Northern California.
Members of the California Nurses Association Thursday night ratified a two-year contract which sets a staffing policy in special units at the facilities from Sacramento to San Jose.
"Hospitals were crippled by the strike. Nursing staffs were reduced to a minimum agreed to by the strikers before the June 7 walkout."
Neither the nurses nor the three hospital groups claimed victory, but the nurses were granted concessions in the staffing of such areas as coronary, burn and intensive care units.

Chrysler hikes prices again

DETROIT (UPI) — The Chrysler Corp. Thursday increased new car and truck prices for the 15th time by $65 — making the average cost of all 1974 models $568 higher now than when they were first introduced.
In a brief, three-paragraph statement, Chrysler said its steel costs have increased an average of $102 per vehicle since April 30; the same day the No. 3 automaker announced an average $122 price increase.
Chrysler's action followed by one day a price hike by U.S. Steel, the No. 1 producer of cold rolled and hot rolled steel sheets.

Fraud charge dropped

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A charge against Los Angeles hypnotist Ronald Dante, former husband of Lana Turner, of defrauding a California electronics firm was dropped by a Pima County justice of the peace.
Dante, 54, still faces trial here July 16 on a charge of attempting to hire a killer to murder a rival hypnotist. He had been charged with defrauding a Van Nuys, Calif., electronics firm of $3,565 worth of equipment for his airplane.

Evel's attorneys hope to meet laws

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls attorney for Evel Knievel said today they hope to comply with federal requirements governing the motorcyclist's planned leap of the Snake River Canyon.
However they could not give assurances that Knievel would comply with a threatened federal court order to halt the jump should the cyclist not meet federal safety standards.

Attorney Jay D. Sudweeks said he could not say whether Knievel would obey the law. "Evel's the only one who can answer that. I can't answer that. I think we have an ethical obligation to inform him of the consequences of breaking the law and what the law is."

On Tuesday, Knievel reportedly had said the only way his jump could be halted by federal officials would be to shoot him down during the leap or to put him in jail.
Sudweeks said Knievel's law firm, May, May and Sudweeks, had begun processing application forms for a special use permit to allow Knievel to land on Bureau of Land Management land on the northside of the Snake River Canyon.

He said he expected to complete the application by the July 5 deadline extension set by the BLM.

such applications is 60 days in advance of the event. The extension would give the jumper until 60 days in advance of his leap.

In a separate statement issued by James May of Knievel's law firm, assurance was given that adequate steps were being taken to ensure safety and crowd control.
May said "tentative arrangements" had been made with state police officials to provide state policemen for external security at the jump area and patrol traffic.

However, Idaho Law Enforcement Commissioner John Bender, who oversees the state police, said today the state police have no commitments at this time.
"He said he would meet with Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder in the near future to discuss arrangements for crowd control and security at the event. He said the meeting was requested by Corder."

May's statement said tentative arrangements have been made for "internal security by using local off-duty police officers and sheriff's posse."

May said there will be "no rock music or rock festival" in any way connected with the jump. "If he has anything to do with it,"
He said earlier plans to block out Idaho, Montana and Utah from closed-circuit television broadcasts may be changed. He said availability of television coverage will help cut down the traffic problem locally.

May said Raymond Gunn, Moses Lake, Wash., had been given a contract to supply utilities, toilet facilities, drinking water, and health and safety systems at the site. May was not available for elaboration of the "press release."

Simplot files charges

By ED MITCHELL
Times-News writer
HEYBURN — Charges of unfair labor practices were filed Thursday against the American Federation of Grain Millers Union.

The J.R. Simplot Co. mailed the charges against the Grain Millers Union to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) in Seattle on Thursday.

According to a telephone conversation with Simplot public relations representative, William Maxwell, the charges comprise four counts of alleged unfair labor practices.
The charges against the union include engaging in "unlawful and coercive mass picketing," refusal to bargain collectively, "intentionally mistating Simplot's position in negotiations," and causing Simplot products not to be sold or handled by concerns normally dealing in the products.

The last charge relates to the boycott which was called by the union early in the strike. A similar list of charges was filed earlier this month by the union against the company. The charges will be investigated by the NLRB. (Continued on p. 13)

Giant oil pact signed

MOSCOW (UPI) — Armand Hammer, chairman of the Occidental Petroleum Co., today would sign five contracts with the Soviet Union worth $22 billion, an Occidental announcement said.
American sources said it would be the largest deal in history between a government and a private company.
Hammer and other company officials were not immediately available for details on the contracts, but they presumably relate to chemical fertilizers.
Hammer signed an agreement of intention with the Soviets last year for chemical fertilizers that was estimated at the time to be worth $2 billion.
Last week he told newsmen that, because of the sharp rise in commodity prices in the past year, the deal is now worth $20 billion.

Nixon rejects arms plan

MOSCOW (UPI) — A senior U.S. official said Thursday that President Nixon has rejected a Soviet arms control plan that would give the United States an advantage in the number of multiple nuclear warheads but leave the U.S.S.R. with more rockets.
The proposal "is not acceptable because the gap is not big enough," the official said on the plane that carried Nixon from Brussels to Moscow, where the serious summit negotiating begins today.

The President and Soviet communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev will be under pressure to make progress toward an arms agreement because the USSR now has its multiple warhead missiles (known as MIRVs), which it can attach to powerful rockets. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Wednesday that it is expected to start doing so shortly.

"Our No. 1 objective is to try to prevent the arms race from getting into the next phase," said the official who would not permit quotation by name. "By 1977, both sides will be heavily MIRVED, and then the situation will be out of control."

Nixon signs pacts

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Nixon reached agreement with the Kremlin leadership today on the first concrete results of his summit meeting — joint U.S.-Soviet ventures aimed at fighting heart disease, finding new energy sources and developing safer housing.

Signing of the agreements followed a two-hour, 10-minute meeting between Nixon and Soviet leaders which also included a general discussion of nuclear arms control, according to White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Nixon smiled as he signed the documents and Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev stood behind him, contentedly puffing a cigarette in an atmosphere of friendship that has prevailed since the President's arrival Thursday for his weeklong summit.

"We feel the additional agreements ... signed today chart a concrete course for the future and contribute to the process of making detente irreversible," Ziegler said.

Before plunging into the Nixon major business of his trip, Nixon did a bit of campaign-style handshaking with a started group of Russians at Red Square. It was an unusual event on both sides since visiting dignitaries rarely meet the Soviet public.

"Someone in the crowd shouted, 'Peace is very important. Kiss! Kiss! Kiss!'"

Nixon chuckled back. "For everybody, the whole world, the Russian people and the American people."

An interpreter relayed his remarks in Russian to the crowd, but on one occasion, Nixon himself spoke Russian: "Ochen' khorocho" (very nice).

The Russian citizens' attitude toward him obviously pleased Nixon. He remarked to newsmen, "They are happy, friendly people. They have a great desire to have friendship with America and they have asked me to return."

The first agreements of the third Nixon-Brezhnev summit in little more than two years provide for:

— Joint research over three years on development of an artificial heart, development of instruments to detect heart disease in children and extension of the operational life of cardiac pacemakers.

— Cooperation in exploration and research on oil, shale, natural gas and coal and other methods of drilling to increase the rate of extraction of oil and gas, a five-year pact also providing for swapping technology on solar and geothermal energy and synthetic fuels.

Development over a five-year period of new techniques of home construction in earthquake-prone areas and in extremely cold and arid regions.

Agreement cited in Gem strike

BOISE — An tentative agreement has been reached in the statewide strike which has idled thousands of construction workers since June 3.

Representatives of five striking trade unions reached the agreement with the Associated General Contractors Thursday. At a press conference Friday morning, contractors' executive director John Molitor and union secretary-treasurer Bob Kinghorn announced that details of the agreement would not be available until it is ratified by union members.

The union officials are forwarding the settlement to members with a recommendation to approve it. Molitor said. Specially-called meetings will be held tonight, Saturday and Sunday to vote on the agreement.

Some union members ratify the settlement, workers should be back on the job by Monday, Molitor added. Unions are instructing pickets to leave their posts at construction jobs. Almost a month long, the strike idled up to 6,000 workers in southern Idaho. The work halt capped one of the busiest times during the construction season.

Affected by the strike are union carpenters, laborers, cement masons, operating engineers and tentmakers.
The strike was called to support union demands for the wage guaranteed under the previous contract plus a seven per cent per year increase during the next three years.

According to Kinghorn, the two-year wage-price freeze prevented workers from getting the wages agreed upon in contracts.

When the freeze was lifted, Kinghorn said, contractors did not increase wages to the agreed level.

Iron workers union members are also on strike, but separate negotiations are planned to resolve that work halt.

TF board OK's new junior high site

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls school board Thursday approved the purchase of about 40 acres southeast of town as the new junior high site.

The school district will pay $188,877 for the land now owned by Mr. and Mrs. G.M. Van Houten, or more than $4,700 an acre.

The trustees also opened bids for the construction of the new elementary school at the specially-scheduled meeting.

The junior high site is bounded on the west by Eastland Drive and on the north by Elizabeth Boulevard and on the south by the road to the cemetery.

The board has agreed to give the Van Houten's a lifetime guarantee that the property, where their house is located — about three-quarters of an acre — will remain in their hands. Down payment on the property will be $37,780 to be followed by four annual payments of about the same amount at six per cent annual interest.

A figure of $150,000 was originally mentioned as possible purchase price for a new junior high school site, but a higher figure was not unexpected, officials said.

Funds for the purchase of the new site were made available by the school bond issue approved last fall. The new school will replace O'Leary Junior High School.

The board members feel the location of the site is good because the new school will be on the opposite side of town as Robert Stuart Junior High School. Also, city water and sewers are easily accessible.

Four bids were received for construction of the new elementary school, the second part of the building project.

The board took the bids into consideration and will discuss them with architect Ed Peterson. Four alternates to the main construction project, including carpeting, partitions, exterior lighting and landscaping, were included in the bid form.

With inclusion of all four alternates, Mitchell Construction Co. of Postville apparently has the low bid at $1,454,500 MGM Construction Co., of Salt Lake City bid $1,464,300 for the entire project; Nelson and Co., Twin Falls, bid $1,545,280; and Stetten Construction Co., Great Falls, Mont., bid $1,628,540.

An estimate made by Peterson a month ago set estimated construction cost of the new elementary school at $1,482,000. (Continued on p. 13)

Bankrupt venture cost $100 million

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Investors who lost $100 million in a drilling company suspected of fraud probably have nothing about the oil business, according to auditors who examined the books of the bankrupt Home-Stake Production Co.

Investors of the firm Cooper & Lybrand said most of the investors, who included prominent businessmen and show business personalities, were not from oil-producing areas.

"Most people in our part of the country wouldn't invest in a program like Home-Stake," Harold Rayburn, a partner in the auditing firm's Tulsa office, said Thursday. "They have more geological information available to them here."

But Rayburn stressed that geological information is not enough to justify heavy investing if the data comes only from the firm making the offer.

"There is nothing sacred about drilling programs," he said. "It's like buying real estate—you want to know how much it's worth and where it's located."

Wall Street analysts said Home-Stake, which attracted $130 million in investments in nine years but declared bankruptcy in 1973 with less than $19 million in assets and unknown debts, was a textbook lesson in crowd psychology.

"There was a phenomenal lure in the substantial returns the early investors received on their first lay-outs to Home-Stake," a Wall Street broker said.

From 1966 to 1969, investors received not only instant tax write-offs but dividends as well. But the dividends from the sunspired from subsequent investors. The potential of huge profits dulled appetites for a fast return.

"If anyone had read the prospectus for the company, he could never have bought that deal because all the facts were fully disclosed," said Victor Alhadeff, chairman of the Seattle-based ENI Corp., which researched oil and gas drilling programs. "Obviously, nobody read anything."

Federal authorities Thursday said tax fraud and criminal charges will be brought against the principal officer of Home-Stake, Robert S. Trippett. The SEC and Internal Revenue Service declined to confirm or deny that the charges would be made but federal sources said the criminal case was being prepared.

The court-appointed officers of the bankrupt venture Thursday said they might actually attempt to drill for oil to recover some of the money. Some of the firm's assets include leased land in the western United States and an oil company in Wyoming plans to drill and share profits with Home-Stake if they are successful.

The cost of living in neighboring Italy, has been paying the 35 resident Cardinals a monthly bonus of $123 since January as a partial reimbursement of servants' salaries.

On the other hand, the sources said, Cardinals now have to pay for their own electricity, gas and heating, which previously was free, and this has wiped out good share of the bonus.

The sources said the bonus came on top of the normal pay of about $1,080 a month for ordinary Cardinals or $1,154 for those who head Vatican departments.

Fighting reported heavy in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government troops—hurting hand grenades into rebel bunkers only 50 yards away today reopened a stretch of Highway 5 at Phum Kheang Sbek, 15 miles north of Phnom Penh. Both sides took heavy losses, field reporters said.

Fighting raged throughout the day at the town and at least five government soldiers were killed and 22 wounded, initial reports said. Rebel casualties were reported very heavy.

Government 728 fighter-bombers supported the troops along a three-mile front. Field reports said the Cambodian troops crawled on hands and knees to toss grenades into insurgent bunkers and foxholes and finally linked up with other government troops north of Phum Kheang Sbek.

The government units were stopped when they tried to advance further up the road toward the Tonle Sap River market town of Kompeng Luong, three miles away. Officers said "many" rebel troops were slain in the clash but they had no precise figures on the number of dead.

Newsman in contempt again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Times reporter William Farr, who spent 45 days in jail on contempt charges for refusing to reveal to a judge the identity of a confidential news source, has been found in contempt again, by another court, for sticking to his refusal.

"This is a mockery of justice," protested Farr's lawyer, Mark Hurwitz. "It is a violation of everything that is fair and decent and consonant with the due process of law."

He said that Farr, whose case has become one of the most celebrated press-versus-judiciary struggles in the nation, appears doomed "to run the gauntlet as many times as there are courts available" in a revolving-door process of questioning, refusal, contempt findings and jail.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Chouteau found Farr guilty on six counts of contempt Thursday for refusing to answer questions by a county grand jury, which is investigating possible perjury by lawyers involved in the 1970 Manson Family trial.

"He will pass sentence Tuesday, the judge said, telling the reporter, 'Mr. Farr, you're a well-respected member of your profession. I've known you as a reporter for a number of years. I know you as a man of principle.'"

However, the judge said, reasonable men often differ on principles.

The core of Farr's case—which has now been taken to federal appellate courts and two Superior courts—is his refusal to name two attorneys at the Manson trial who gave him information for a story. In doing so, they broke a gag order by Superior Court Judge Charles Older, the trial judge.

Farr faces a maximum 30-day sentence by Chouteau for refusing to tell the grand jury, and a maximum 65-day sentence by Older on July 29, for refusing to tell him.

In another case, the American Civil Liberties Union announced Thursday it was joining the defense of Will Lewis, manager of radio station KPEK, who was jailed nine days ago by a federal judge for refusing to surrender the original of a taped message from Patricia Hearst.

Crowd safety Evel's concern

Evel Knievel should begin thinking seriously about some of the less-spectacular aspects of his death-defying leap across the Snake River Canyon. Among other things, he will be responsible for the safety of the people crowding the canyon rim on Sept. 8 to watch Knievel's attempted motorcycle leap of the canyon.

So far, Knievel has moved slowly to make arrangements for safer, sane handling of crowds that could grow to several hundred thousand.

Even though he reportedly was notified two years ago that he would need a federal special use permit to use the Northside rim as a landing site, he waited until this week to seek application forms for such a permit.

Special use permits are not just a technicality, but the primary tool used by the BLM to ensure that adequate arrangements are made to ensure the safety of the crowds expected. As pointed out by BLM officials Wednesday, there is a slim possibility that surging crowds could press forward toward the rim, pushing some people off. That may seem far-fetched, but with a hundred thousand eager fans crowding the rim, almost anything could happen.

The BLM has given Knievel an extension of the deadline required for seeking his permit. Surely the BLM is to be commended for its flexibility and attempt to work with Knievel. However, there is a point beyond which the BLM patience won't stretch.

The exciting prospect of a spectacular stunt near Twin Falls should not lead community leaders and Evel himself to give only secondary consideration to matters of public safety and welfare. Feeding, housing, protecting, parking, and amusing hundreds of thousands of people will require much advance planning and some good luck.

Ten weeks remain before the jump—ample time to arrange a safe, sane event which everyone will remember with pleasure. This includes, hopefully, Evel Knievel himself.

Pork barrel politics

Salt Lake Volume

In truth, the budget reform bill passed by Congress has the potential for living up to those lofty statements that attended its passage. It is sorely needed legislation.

But no law is any better than its observance or enforcement. Since the budget reform act is an attempt to bring reason to congressional spending, it follows that many a congressman's pet project stands to be affected.

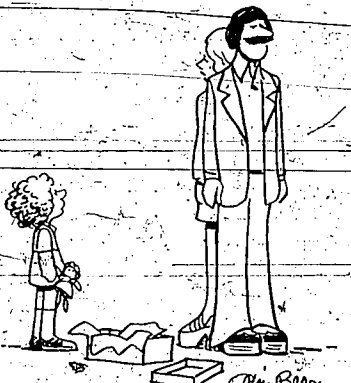

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., proclaimed the bill "the most important piece of legislation I've worked on in my 20 years in the Senate." But will retiring Sen. Ervin's successor or even the other senators who voted for the measure, forego temptation to circumvent its restrictions when the chips are down?

The bill is the product of an 18-month effort by Congress to develop a coherent system for dealing with government spending. It takes back at the start of the government's fiscal year to Oct. 1 from July 1 establishes new budget committees in the House and Senate and creates a congressional budget office similar to the executive branch's Office of Management and Budget.

These and other provisions are needed tools for correcting the crazy quilt way of authorizing and appropriating money without tabulation of overall costs. But the most crucial element of all cannot be legislated. It can only be supplied by enlightened congressmen willing to subordinate fiscal responsibility for pork barrel politics.

The reform bill is an indication that this Congress is willing to try. But whether the legislation is truly a landmark or just another fruitless attempt to change political reality remains to be seen.

Nixon Moscow mission reinforced by NATO unity

(c) Chicago Daily News
BRUSSELS — In a perfunctory display of cohesion and unity, the European allies Wednesday reinforced President Nixon's mission to Moscow by signing a declaration of Atlantic relations.

The ceremonial event was intended to assuage Allied resentment over U.S. failure to commit during the Middle East war last October, a move that it is hoped would strengthen Nixon's hand in his talks with Kremlin leaders.

In a closed session of the NATO council and top political leaders, with the exception of France's Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, the President outlined his purposes and aims in going to Moscow for the third summit in three years.

U.S. officials indicated the President had scaled down expectations of reaching a permanent agreement on stage two of strategic arms control. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said that the President and Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev have agreed on where they want to go.

Kissinger, who hinted that he may have to go back to Moscow after the summit talks, identified the key problem as one of relating "warheads to numbers of missiles."

The banal talk notwithstanding, some U.S. officials would not be surprised if a limited deal on arms control were made in Moscow. They recalled the Nixon-Kissinger penchant for dramatic eleventh-hour surprises.

The debate in Washington over SALT I, spearheaded by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, was thought to be a bar to hasty compromises or ambiguous understandings in the SALT 2 negotiations.

The NATO document signed in Ottawa last week by the foreign ministers of the Allied countries fell short of Kissinger's desire for a stirring new "Atlantic charter," although Kissinger said it came within 10 per cent of his concept. However, there were signs that the root of the dispute still festered.

The long declaration signed here by Nixon, more militant in tone than many East-West experts feel was necessary in the climate of détente, cannot be considered a substitute for the will of the alliance, according to Kissinger.

What the secretary had in mind was that the European allies cannot be fierce competitors outside the alliance and expect total support inside it. It was a reiteration of the old argument that the U.S. nuclear umbrella, under which Europe feels secure, deserves more than discriminatory trade treatment inside the Common Market.

Nixon kept a full schedule Wednesday, meeting with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Italian Premier Mariano Rumor. The newly installed French president, Giscard, maintained the customary aloofness from any semblance of dominance by the United States in European affairs. He stayed away but dispatched Prime Minister Jacques Chirac for a brief appearance in Nixon's company.

Mideast N-plants first proposed by Ike in '67

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — When President Nixon promised to sell nuclear fuel and power plants to Egypt and Israel he was in part carrying out a policy conceived by President Eisenhower and his former atomic energy chief in 1967.

The latter policy hoped to facilitate peace by developing the barren borderland between Egypt and Israel (in the extreme south) where Jordan had Israel. The recommended means of carrying this out was to establish three large nuclear plants providing ample power for among other things, mass desalting of water to irrigate the desert.

The plan, which came from Adm. Lewis Strauss right after the June 1967 war in which Israel defeated her Arab neighbors. Strauss, who had been Eisenhower's AEC chairman, sent a memorandum on June 23 to the former president at his Gettysburg, Pa., home.

The logic developed by Eisenhower from the Strauss draft was that both Arabs and Israelis would gain something tangible from the proposal, thus removing fundamental causes of tension. Not only new sources of power but vast quantities of fresh water would be made available to an area which could prove capable of absorbing the entire population of unhappy Palestinian Arab refugees.

As Eisenhower thought, the United States should take the lead in facing the "real issues" of the region: shortage of water and the question of refugees. Two or three large nuclear plants were required with the idea of generating between 750 million and a billion gallons of sweet water daily, he added.

"The bigger the plant, the more economic the operation. This water would cost more than the price of New York City water but it is cheap for a country that doesn't have water at all. And Syria, Jordan, Israel and Egypt would all profit as much from such a plan. The people couldn't permit their governments to refuse participation."

SULZBERGER

Unfortunately, that chance was never officially presented. As far as I have been able to ascertain, Lyndon Johnson let the idea drop. The project conceived of joint U.S. and private financing of a chartered corporation to initiate the program even prior to formalized frontier accords between the states involved. It would have provided the area with perhaps two and a half times the water of the whole Jordan River system and its creation could have absorbed the idle labor reservoir of Arab refugees. Unfortunately this imaginative approach failed to galvanize State Department or White House thinking in 1967.

The Nixon-Kissinger policy that has been broadly depicted by the President (who, after all, was Eisenhower's No. 1) will serve as a viable if delayed substitute to the still-born original. It contains some of the same essentials aimed at helping and not hindering both Arabs and Israelis and at creating the human and economic climate for peace.

The Nixon-Kissinger approach clearly seeks to create necessary "political and human conditions for peace before constructing its economic basis; and this may prove to be sensible. Either way, the goal is the same: a durable settlement in the Middle East and the first Strauss draft suggested: "The beginning of a new life in the lands of the oldest civilizations."

"WE CONSIDER THAT YOU, THE PUBLIC, HAS THE RIGHT OF ACCESS TO CERTAIN EVIDENCE. OH, YOU'VE ALREADY HEARD."

Mayors call inflation new terror of cities

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Behind their usual criticism of the Nixon administration and demands for more federal money, the nation's mayors in their 42nd annual conference were then unable to cope with the new terror of the cities.

No less than ordinary wage-earners, the mayors have confronted sustained double-digit inflation with stunned disbelief. They have no solutions for this threat to their sovereignty.

The rhetoric here seemed to fall flat with the time. Resolutions and formal speeches demanded more federal spending, particularly for mass transit systems, the mayors generally praised the administration-backed community development bill, recently passed by the House, as the only relatively relevant plan. Yet that program is irrelevant to fighting inflation. Inflation talk dominated private conversation at the many social functions here. Whereas the mayors meeting in San Francisco in 1973 were preoccupied by Watergate, the mayors at San Diego in 1974 dwelled on their sudden recognition of inflation's vicious circle. The inexorable rise in costs has caused chaos at city hall. Rates on water and other services in San Diego are increasing by as much as 100 per cent. Many cities rely on property taxes, which cannot expand to reflect inflation. City employees are induced by inflation to join unions, whose mushrooming demands create new municipal crises. Such highly regarded progressive mayors as Moon Landrieu of New Orleans and Neil Goldschmidt of Portland, Ore., told us inflation, though inadequately represented on the agenda here, is their biggest problem.

Swift mayors wonder how combating inflation is compatible with their traditional commitment to liberal social welfare goals. Maynard Jackson, the eloquent young mayor of Atlanta, was asked whether his goal of two per cent unemployment was not inflationary in itself. He answered that it was not. A fellow black city official told us in analyzing Jackson's reply, "He didn't answer, because there is no politically acceptable answer."

Another liberal young mayor complained that his city was nearing bankruptcy because of 20 per cent wage increase demands by employees. What can be done? "Well," he replied, "it would help if Nixon spent less money on defense and more on us."

What, not regular, reflects a profound inability to come to grips with inflation, deep-seated in the mentality of today's mayors. Beyond criticism of defense spending, the overwhelmingly Democratic mayors remain critical of the Nixon administration for many reasons unrelated to Watergate. They feel the administration's new housing program will not attract private developers. While grateful that the White House no longer opposes mass transit subsidies, they grumble not enough money is contemplated.

Before the presidential and vice-presidential level, however, relations between the mayors and the Nixon administration have never been better. Attending this conference were at least 43 federal officials headed by James T. Lynn, secretary of housing and urban development. Lynn, a former Cleveland corporation attorney, has established remarkable empathy with the mayors because of his warmth and intelligence.

The mayors have achieved or are approaching many old goals: federal revenue sharing, personal community development funds, mass transit subsidies. But this is threatened by inflation. On that point, Lynn could reassure them this week.

Mona Lisa missed visit

PARIS — One of the main reasons I came back to Paris was to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the breaking of the six-minute

It was 20 years to the day that an American student named Peter Stone amazed the world by going through the Louvre museum in 5 minutes and 19 seconds.

As everyone knows, there are only three things worth seeing in the Louvre museum — the Venus de Milo, the Winged Victory and the Mona Lisa.

For years tourists have been trying to get through the Louvre as quickly as possible, then go shopping again.

Before World War II, the record for going through the Louvre was 7 minutes and 14 seconds. But after the war, as clothes got lighter and cameras got smaller, people kept cutting down the time, and in 1948 a man known as the Swedish Cannonball, paced by his Welsh wife, did it in 6 minutes and 12 seconds.

But it was to be six more years. On June 18, 1954, Peter Stone, under perfect tourist conditions, literally flew through the Louvre, around the Venus de Milo, up past the Winged Victory, down to the Mona Lisa and out into a waiting taxi. He achieved the impossible, as bringing fame and wealth to himself and glory to his country.

President Eisenhower personally sent him a telegram which read: "I rejoice with all Americans at your amazing feat. You're what the United States is all about."

So here I was 20 years later at the Louvre museum with Peter Stone to relive that great moment in history.

Stone, now middle-aged, paunchy and slightly gray, went unrecognized by most of the tourists who were going through the Louvre. As we went over the same course, he noted, "It's all different now. There are very few American tourists any more and it's only a matter of time before the Japanese will take the record away from us."

"Peter, I was there the day you broke the six-minute Louvre," I said. "I remember your sailing five at the time that you were going to do it. What made you so sure?"

"I had discovered something that nobody else knew," he said as we walked around the Venus de Milo, "and that was you didn't have to pay admission on Sunday mornings to get into the Louvre. In that way, I could cut 20 seconds from my time. The second thing I did was leave the film out of my camera. I carried less weight than other tourists. Finally, I had a nonskid sneaker so I could make sharp turns around the Winged Victory without slipping on the marble."

We walked up the staircase past the Winged Victory. "This is where I made up 30 seconds," Peter said. "Most tourists look at the back of the Winged Victory, but I just whizzed by without stopping."

ART

"What did you do after you broke the 6-minute Louvre?" I asked Peter.

"I did some exhibition running at the Prado in Spain and the Tate Gallery in London. The flustans invited me to run through the Hermitage in Leningrad. But it was during the height of the cold war and John Foster Dulles wouldn't let me do it."

We arrived at the Mona Lisa hung when Peter had broken the record. The picture wasn't there! I asked an old guard, "Where is the Mona Lisa?"

The guard shrugged his shoulders and replied, "In Japan. Tears came to Peter's eyes as he said: 'It figures.'"

"More, More!"

Famine deaths will awaken world to food crisis

(C) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — It probably will take an epidemic of 10 million to 50 million deaths from famine to awaken world leaders to the real implications of the food-and-population crisis, says the "father of the green revolution" — and this rude awakening could well come this year.

This dire prediction from Nobel Prize winner Norman Borlaug is contained in testimony to a Senate select committee on food and nutrition headed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Borlaug, whose 1970 peace award was for his part in developing high-yield cereal grains, said that time bought for mankind through the so-called "green revolution" has largely been squandered because governments have not come to grips with the problem of unbridled population growth.

Adverse weather conditions this year in major grain-growing areas — floods in Iowa and Illinois, untimely rains in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, a series of late spring cold snaps in the Ukraine — may trigger widespread famine in Africa, Asia and some parts of Latin America, Borlaug warned. Cereals have jumped as much as six-fold in the price of grains and the fertilizers needed to grow them have imposed an impossible burden on poor nations, Borlaug said.

Recent worldwide increases in the price of grains and the fertilizers needed to grow them have imposed an impossible burden on poor nations, Borlaug said.

In 1971 India spent $560 million on imports of crude oil, fertilizer and about 10 million bushels of food grains, he said. "To buy the same amounts of those products today would cost $3.1 billion," he said, "which is completely impossible for a country which exchanges with foreign countries for only $2.4 billion."

Even this does not reveal the true gravity of the situation, he said. Because of rapid population growth the amount of grain needed in India in 1971 would be completely inadequate today. Almost all the grain consumed in India is eaten directly by humans. In contrast, the situation in the United States where about 80 per cent is fed to animals for meat, eggs, milk and other products.

Analysis

"The green revolution" — a term Borlaug emphasized was not invented by the scientists who brought it about — was hailed in the '60s as a solution to mankind's hunger problem.

Former Sen. Joseph Tyding, D-Md., who accompanied Borlaug to the Senate hearing, said it might indeed have been the solution if efforts to curb population growth had been undertaken concurrently.

A key to the plentiful output of the high-yield varieties of cereal developed in the green revolution is heavy use of fertilizer, much of which is made from natural gas and other "petroleum" products. Chemical fertilizers are now in extremely short supply and cost four or five times as much as they did a year or so ago.

But the agricultural scientists are often criticized for not developing strains of wheat, rice and other grains that give high yields without large applications of fertilizer.

"When people ask me when we'll get sustenance," he said, "I tell them, 'About six months after you produce a man and woman, who don't need food.'"

World grain harvests in 1971 amounted to about 40 billion bushels, Borlaug said, "equivalent to a highway around the world, 35 feet wide and with a roadbed six feet thick."

Unlike an ordinary highway which, once in place, can be used for years on end, the grain-harvest "highway" has to be replaced each year because it is consumed by the animals and the livestock.

Actually, Borlaug said, population growth requires more than the mere replacement of the harvest. "With 75 million more people on earth each year, we not only have to rebuild that highway, but also begin building a second one at the rate of 825 miles a year."

"Emphasizing the rapidly with which world population is growing," Borlaug observed, after the hearing had been underway for 1 hour and 20 minutes, "there are 12,000 more people on earth now than there were when this hearing began."

He paused for a moment and then said, "It is monstrous. It is monstrous. It is monstrous."

"Each time I say that little phrase, there are five more people born on earth than have been," Borlaug acknowledged that much of the responsibility for keeping humanity fed rests on the United States, Canada and Australia, which today are the only substantial grain exporters on earth. But he said that it should not be these countries' responsibility to build up and store at their expense reserve stocks of grain needed to avert widespread famine.

"This should be a responsibility of the United Nations," Borlaug said. "If the name of that organization has any meaning," Borlaug said. All countries — including the Soviet Union — should participate, according to their ability to pay, he added.

Borlaug criticized Russia and mainland China for withholding from the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) adequate data on their own crop forecasts. It is hard to make plans, he said, when countries representing one-third of the world's population do not do their share.

An essential project right now, Borlaug declared, is expansion of world capacity for the production of chemical fertilizers. He dismissed organic gardening as "a fine hobby, but no way to approach the feeding of 3 billion people, believe me."

It will require a worldwide investment of $7.5 billion a year for new plants and supporting facilities to meet growing needs for "nitrogen fertilizers," Borlaug said. "It's a monstrous, monstrous, monstrous job," he added.

That's the only public posture they can really take. Privately, they are plenty worried."

The Chinese do have cause for concern, the sources said. Any improvement of relations between the Soviet Union and the United States or the NATO nations does not augur well for China, particularly when it results in a reduction of military tension in Europe.

The Chinese are fearful that loosening of tension in Europe gives the Soviet Union an opportunity to bring more pressure to bear along the disputed Sino-Soviet border, where Peking claims more than a million Soviet troops already are massed.

would be an excellent place to build much of this new capacity, he added.

"Recently I flew over the Persian Gulf at night," he said. "It was a veritable land of the midnight sun caused by the flaring off of gas from walls and refineries — gas that is the best possible raw material for nitrogen fertilizers."

These Arab states would not only be doing the world a service by recovering this gas and manufacturing fertilizer with it, but at the same time would receive a tremendous income, Borlaug remarked.

As things stand, the Nobel winner warned, the world is on the verge of calamity.

"If there should be a major drought anywhere in the world at the present time," he said, "it's hard to think what would happen. We would have disasters in which tens of millions of people would die, and we could do nothing about it."

Borlaug ticked off six "basic needs" of all humans: food; clothing; shelter; basic education; medical care when ill; and employment.

"Without these," he said, "life is meaningless. The relative values we place on these will vary from one society to another, but they are all basic." It will be increasingly harder to meet these basic needs if world population growth is not slowed and soon, he added.

'Deterrent' due food

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI) — The West Virginia Senate adopted a resolution Wednesday to feed the gray squirrels on the capital grounds because their "propensity for nibbling at the first thing they see constitutes an effective deterrent against streakers."

The resolution was adopted unanimously by a voice vote.

hormones after menopause, as almost a general rule, but to me, it resembles a shotgun approach, and I view it as wise to give them when there is clear need rather than giving them "just because."

There is a bone that juts out under my left breast which pains me almost constantly and even hurts when I walk. Some people tell me it might be a hiatus hernia. Would an X-ray tell, and if it should be such a hernia, is it dangerous? — Mrs. L.E.

It doesn't, in the least sound like a hiatus hernia which does not bulge to the outside. If it is painful all the time, it is something that requires attention. I fervently urge you

YOUR GOOD HEALTH Estrogen need uncertain

Dear Dr. Thosteson: As a 50-year-old woman who has completed menopause, I am unclear how necessary it is for me to take estrogen. I am in good health and have had no menopause problems at all except for mild hot flashes. My inclination always is to take as little medication as possible.

My doctor is not pressing estrogen upon me, yet apparently he routinely prescribes it for all such women as myself. What are the pros and cons? I have your booklet on menopause but it doesn't answer specifically when and why one should or should not take hormones. — Mrs. V.J.

If you'll give the booklet another careful reading, I think you'll find that it does give you your answer. It specifies several times that estrogen (female hormones) should be given when there is a definite need, not the menopause itself.

The primary use is to abate hot flashes when they are severe enough to be annoying — as they are to many women. In other women the natural hormone balance remains such that they have little or no trouble with hot flashes — and in that case what's the use of hormones?

A secondary aspect is cited on page 24 of the booklet. Sometimes a certain degree of tenderness of the vaginal area develops after menopause, attributable usually to a thinning of the membranes. Hormones, either in cream form or by injection or by mouth can correct this. Again, use the hormones if they are needed.

A somewhat more remote use of hormones is part of the treatment in case osteoporosis develops. Again, that occurs in some women, not in others.

On the other side of the picture, in certain cases of cancer, patients should not be given hormones because of the risk of accelerating the growth of the cancer. The hormones don't cause the cancer, but if some types of cancer already exist, the speed can be accentuated. (But keep in mind that this is a matter involving technical differences that are important. In certain cases of cancer, hormones may in fact be used as part of the treatment, so do not try to oversimplify this matter.)

I am aware that some doctors do "indeed" prescribe to stop letting your friends make a guessing game of it, and go to your doctor for an accurate diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does "dark brown urine and whitish gray stool signify" mean? — Mrs. O.L.

It implies an obstruction somewhere in the bile system — bile is not entering the intestinal tract as it should, but is backing up in your system and the dark urine would result.

There are several possible causes: a gall stone in the bladder or somewhere in the duct; a tumor pressing on the duct; possibly hepatitis. Whichever, it requires immediate medical attention.

Kellwood earnings, sales set records

ST. LOUIS — Kellwood Co. set records for sales and earnings in the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended April 30.

Kellwood chairman and president Fred W. Wenzel said today.

Kellwood earned $8.58 million or $2.57 a share in fiscal 1974, up 11.5 per cent from 1973 operating income of $7.67 million or $2.31 a share. Compared to net income in fiscal 1973 of $6.9 million or $2.03 a share, after an extraordinary charge of $773,000 or 23 cents a share, 1974 net income increased 24.0 per cent.

Sales for the year were $367.4 million, up 12.4 per cent or $41.82 million from 1973 sales of $325.58 million.

Fourth quarter income totaled $2.74 million or 82 cents a share, up 19.1 per cent from operating income of $2.3 million or 70 cents a share for the same period last year. Compared to fourth quarter net income a year ago of $2 million or 61 cents a share, after an extraordinary charge of $294,000 or nine cents a share, the increase in the 1974 quarter was 36.6 per cent.

Fourth quarter sales rose 29.6 per cent or $23.87 million to $104.47 million from $80.6 million a year ago.

Wenzel said Kellwood has increased sales in every year of its history and has improved earnings for five consecutive years, including record earnings this year and in 1973.

Kellwood operates a hosiery manufacturing plant in Twin Falls.

Kellwood is generally optimistic about fiscal 1975, Wenzel said.

"Demand for our products is strong, particularly in apparel and home fashions, and we think recreation sales will pick up, too," he added. Kellwood is a major manufacturer of recreation equipment, home fashions and apparel.

China worries over Nixon trip

HONGKONG (UPI) — China is worried about President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union.

There has been no public comment so far from Peking on the president's new "Journey for peace." But Chinese officials have expressed deep concern in private talks with diplomats based in Peking and to visitors to the capital.

The only bright spot the Chinese see, according to Peking-based diplomatic sources, is the fact that Nixon is backing up in your system and the dark urine would result.

There are several possible causes: a gall stone in the bladder or somewhere in the duct; a tumor pressing on the duct; possibly hepatitis. Whichever, it requires immediate medical attention.

"This is purely wishful thinking on the part of the Chinese," said one Western diplomat who has had in meetings with Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai when such matters were discussed privately.

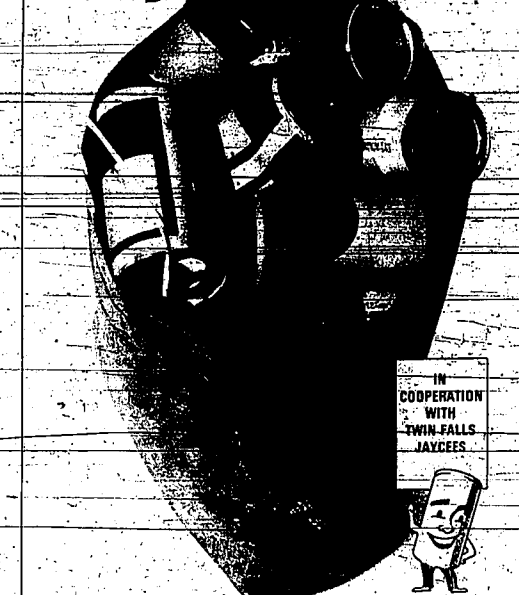

That's the only public posture they can really take. Privately, they are plenty worried."

The Chinese do have cause for concern, the sources said. Any improvement of relations between the Soviet Union and the United States or the NATO nations does not augur well for China, particularly when it results in a reduction of military tension in Europe.

The Chinese are fearful that loosening of tension in Europe gives the Soviet Union an opportunity to bring more pressure to bear along the disputed Sino-Soviet border, where Peking claims more than a million Soviet troops already are massed.

US in black 2 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In only two of the past 17 years has the government taken in more money than it has spent.

But Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Wednesday the administration at least ought to consider the inflation dampening advantages of running a "significant surplus" in the federal budget.

"First, Simon told a House-Senate subcommittee, it would reduce the government's borrowing needs, thus freeing up funds for the private sector, especially the hard-pressed housing industry."

'Gate staff cites funding scheme

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate Watergate committee staff report says President Nixon's reelection campaign engaged in a systematic scheme to raise millions of dollars through corporate executives.

The staff report, which will become part of the committee's final report, said the scheme began with the so-called "Fortune 500" corporations and eventually reached 1,833 firms.

It said illegal corporate gifts often were disguised as donations by individuals who were then reimbursed through "bonuses" and other methods. Campaign contributions by corporations, however, are legal unless the individual uses corporate funds.

The report concluded that "no evidence of illegal union contribution activity" was disclosed.

But Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, charged that the committee skipped over the influence of labor unions in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Humphrey denies knowledge of aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., says if any corporations contributed illegally to his 1972 presidential bid, he "was unaware of it."

The former vice president and 1968 Democratic presidential nominee was accused along with Rep. "Woody" D. Mills, D-Calif., of accepting illegal corporate gifts in a draft report prepared for the Senate Watergate Committee.

The report also said both their campaign managers invoked the 5th Amendment to avoid testifying.

"I have not seen this draft report, but according to information made public by the press it is filled with innuendoes and inaccuracies," Humphrey said in a two-page statement Thursday.

Humphrey said he had not

"Why," McClure asked in a prepared speech, "was there no testimony taken from labor leaders by the committee in its investigation?"

So far, Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has brought charges of illegal campaign contributions against more than a dozen corporations and their executives. No unions have been charged.

The committee's final report, expected to run 1,500 to 1,600 pages, will be submitted to the Senate by mid-July, but will not be released to the public until the week of July 7. The committee also is expected to make public hundreds of pages of evidence it has gathered as well as the transcripts of its closed-door meetings.

The staff report, prepared by David Rosen, assistant chief counsel, said the "Corporate Group Solicitation Program" was conceived in 1972 by Newell P. Weed Jr., vice chairman of the Finance Committee in the House of Representatives, and President, and Harold B. Scott.

cooperated with the Watergate Committee's investigation of an alleged $25,000 donation from the Associated Milk Producers' Inc. (AMPI) because he did not know about the gift.

He said his personal expenditures during his try for the 1972 nomination came from a trust fund he established in 1965.

The report charged that Jack Chestnut, Humphrey's former campaign manager, destroyed the campaign's financial records for the period before April 7, 1972, when a new full disclosure law went into effect.

The report charged that Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. (3M) contributed $10,000 to Humphrey in corporate funds channeled through a consultant in Europe.

Troops manned roadblocks and checked the identification of everyone entering the airport. Customs searches also were intensified, but arrivals and departures at Heathrow were not affected.

JAMES ST. CLAIR no converts

St. Clair winds up defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair is completing his presentation of "Nixon's impenetrable defense case today; but there's no sign that he has won any converts or changed any minds."

The Democrats in the House Judiciary Committee called the St. Clair case unpersuasive — and, in some instances, uninformed.

The Republicans generally called it fair — but short of new facts that would establish as indisputable Nixon's innocence of wrongdoing.

St. Clair, in his closed-door statements, focused on one of the most serious charges against Nixon — that he authorized the $75,000 payment of hush money to E. Howard Hunt on March 21, 1973.

Today, wrapping up Nixon's defense, he will discuss allegations in the 42-million-dollar pledge, the Ellsberg break-in, the wiretap against newsmen and officials and the $432,787 underpayment of Nixon's taxes.

St. Clair's presentation wasn't written for the committee, it was "written for the press," Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., told reporters. "It was filled with little distortions, you'll love to print."

Jury ready in Ehrlichman trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For John D. Ehrlichman, once among the most powerful men in Washington, the future hinges on whether 12 citizens find him guilty or innocent of plotting a burglary.

The break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg, a psychiatrist on Labor Day weekend of 1971 was not a simple breaking and entering job, it was a raid described in another federal court last year as a "bizarre violation of an innocent citizen's liberties."

The jury, six men and six women and nine of them black, today begins hearing evidence in the U.S. district court of Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, William H. Merrill, an assistant to Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski who is in charge of the prosecution team, planned — a 75-minute opening statement.

Merrill will tell the jurors, chosen and sequestered Thursday afternoon, that he intends to prove that Ehrlichman and three codefendants plotted the burglary to get Ellsberg's records, allegedly as part of a White House plot to poison the public mind against Ellsberg.

Ellsberg had released top secret Pentagon Papers on the origins of the Vietnam War.

One former defendant "now expected to be a prosecution witness, Charles W. Colson, said last week that President Nixon urged him to leak damaging information about Ellsberg.

After opening prosecution and defense statements, the first witnesses were to be called, this afternoon. The witness list, nearly 60 names long, includes Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig.

The trial is expected to last a month to six weeks. On trial with Nixon's former domestic affairs adviser are three convicted Watergate burglars — G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio R. Martinelli.

All are accused of conspiring to violate the civil rights of psychiatrist Lewis J. Fielding of Beverly Hills, Calif., a charge the jurors carries a maximum 10-year prison term upon conviction.

Pair reunited

THE MOTHER is tearful — the daughter joyful — as 5-year-old Karen Joyce Huber is reunited with her mother after she was kidnapped seven months ago near her Echo Park, Calif., home. William Knapp, the suspect in custody in the kidnapping of 4-year-old Michelle Bacher, is believed responsible for the Huber kidnapping. (UPI)

Kidnaped girl returned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Hi, mommy," cried 5-year-old Karen Huber, bursting into tears and clinging to her mother, Mary Ann Huber, a seven-month hunt for her daughter, a misplaced kidnapping victim.

Karen was kidnapped in Los Angeles last year, and although she was reunited with her mother until Thursday, it turned out she had actually been recovered by police in San Diego in January.

At the time, it was thought she was the daughter of her alleged kidnaper.

A San Diego policeman and a Los Angeles juvenile detail sergeant testified together the places that led to Karen's recovery from a foster home.

"I had never given up hope that I would see her again," said Mrs. Huber, a divorcee. "Deep down I knew she was all right because I knew no one could hurt someone so sweet and lovable."

Karen was found because of the arrest in San Diego last week of Jack Clifton Sharp, 45, a convicted child molester, for the alleged kidnapping of another little girl, Michelle Bacher.

Michelle disappeared from near her home in Long Beach on June 17.

She was found last Friday in San Diego by police, acting on a tip from the landlady of a rooming house where Sharp lived, who did not believe his story that the girl was his daughter.

Police arrested Sharp on charges of child stealing and child molestation.

The landlady said he had another daughter there for about five weeks in December. She knew Sharp as William Knapp.

The remark was seen in a news story by Los Angeles juvenile detail Sgt. Harry Gilpin.

"He was struck by the resemblance of the Bacher girl — a pretty, blue-eyed blonde — to Karen Huber, who disappeared Nov. 13 from a kindergarten school grounds."

Meanwhile, San Diego policeman Lynn Donnelly was working the case from the other end — wondering whether a girl listed in San Diego files as "Karen Knapp" was really Knapp's daughter.

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — A former United States ambassador to Jamaica apparently received an "express commitment" of a more attractive embassy in return for a $100,000 campaign pledge to President Nixon and other Republican candidates, the Senate Watergate committee has been told.

According to a confidential draft report of the panel's investigation of campaign finance practices, Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer, made assurances of a reassignment to Vincent De Roulet, the ambassador, who subsequently fulfilled the $100,000 pledge.

Kalmbach has pleaded guilty to criminal charges brought by the special Watergate prosecutor of offering a similar arrangement to J. Fife Symington, while he was the American envoy to Trinidad and Tobago.

Kalmbach entered his guilty plea on Feb. 25, 1974; he has since been sentenced to six months in prison. It was exactly a year earlier, the report pointed out, that President Nixon declared at a Feb. 25, 1973, news conference that "ambassadors have not been for sale" in his administration.

But the evidence contained in the Watergate committee report provided the first indication that Nixon's lawyer, while serving as an unofficial Republican fund-raiser, had tendered a second illegal offer to an incumbent ambassador, De Roulet, who resigned as ambassador to Jamaica in August, 1973, said in a telephone interview Thursday that, while "I don't see how anybody could make (the) statement" that "his contribution and hoped-for transfer were unrelated," "I never said to him (Kalmbach) I gave you $100,000, now where the hell's thy post."

De Roulet nevertheless conceded to the Senate investigators that, even when he first sought an ambassadorship in 1968, "I knew that there were only three or four ways to get it, one of which was money."

De Roulet told the staff in an interview, the report stated, that he understood that he had a commitment for an

"ambassadorship" followed a May, 1970, conversation with Mr. Kalmbach, who had come to Jamaica to attend a birthday party for Mrs. De Roulet, the daughter of Mrs. Joan Payson, owner of the New York Mets baseball team.

Symington, who also left his ambassadorship without the requested promotion, could not be reached for comment.

While it is not illegal for ambassadors or other public officials to contribute to political campaigns, the United States Criminal Code prohibits the promising of government employment as a reward for supporting a candidate for federal office.

The reported solicitation of campaign contributions from prospective or incumbent ambassadors reaches back at least to the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and there have been recent disclosures of sizable donations to the Nixon election campaign from such persons.

However, Kalmbach, according to the report, was "the first person in recent times to be convicted for selling an ambassadorship."

The staff report, prepared by the assistant chief counsel, David Darsen, noted that it was only after Kalmbach was granted immunity from further prosecution that he advised the committee investigators that De Roulet had been given a "commitment" similar to that provided Symington.

Church of Brethren studies agri issues

ROANOKE, Va. — Alarmed at the state farm families, sharecroppers and rural businesses are being squeezed off the American scene, the Church of the Brethren is engaged in a comprehensive study of agricultural issues.

The findings and recommendations — 34 of them — prepared by a special study panel will be a major agenda item before delegates to the church's annual conference this week in Roanoke.

Many of the proposed recommendations are specific, calling for such measures as a graduated land tax designed to discourage the acquisition of abnormally large holdings; suggesting growers negotiate directly with field workers rather than through crew leaders, and urging the taxing of farm land on the basis of the produce which can be raised rather than in terms of inflated real estate values.

The Brethren have a keen interest in agriculture, recognizing among other things that two out of three of their places of worship still are in rural areas.

The panel preparing the study was drawn from a cross section of persons involved in family farming, agribusiness, the fieldworkers movement, agricultural missions and education in the church.

The findings recommend that both growers and farm workers recognize the need for improvements in management-labor relations and for collective bargaining in good faith.

Government is called upon to enact minimum wage legislation for farm workers and to set standards for free, secret balloting in determining who is to represent farm workers in the negotiation process.

The United Farm Workers of America is commended for its commitment to nonviolence in the struggle for justice.

The committee asks church members to study the problems of growers and workers alike, to assist families in settling out of the migrant stream, and to consider seriously and prayerfully whether they can use the products of producers who reject collective bargaining relationships with any bona-fide association of farm workers.

A system which allows crew leaders to represent field workers is outdated and invites exploitation, the committee report charges. Toward correcting the injustice, the report suggests growers deal directly with field workers.

Conceded with the emergence of giant firms whose operations extend from seed in the ground to sales in the supermarket, the study supports regulations on the entry into farming by corporate enterprises; seeks a redefinition of the term farmer so that price supports and sell bank payments are granted more in accord with need; and urges implementation of federal legislation aimed at reestablishing rural communities.

The report examines biblical perspectives on the use of land and asks the church to study the doctrine of creation, to support conservation and environmental measures, and to reexamine the church's traditional advocacy of simple living.

To the government, commendation is given to the Environmental Protection Agency for establishing minimum standards of purity for air, water, sewage and noise control.

Rigid controls on strip mining are urged to protect the land and its inhabitants. Stepped-up research is sought on solar energy, wind and ocean waves as sources of power.

A final section examines the interest of young persons and others who seek alternative life styles, patterns of living that differ from common norms. Support is urged for the church's involvement in such ventures in both rural and urban settings.

The comprehensive look at agricultural concerns, a year in preparation, was spawned by a query submitted by the Marion, Ohio, Church of the Brethren and the Northern Ohio District and by initiatives taken by the church's World Ministries Commission.

Drama group plans Twin Falls service

TWIN FALLS — The King's Players, a drama group from Asbury College, will perform at the 10 a.m. service Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church in Twin Falls.

The group was organized in 1970 for the purpose of communicating the gospel message by means of religious drama.

At the present time the organization is made up of Mr. and Mrs. Mark B. Lloyd, former professors at Asbury College, ten Asbury College students, one seminary student, one Ohio State student, one high school student and one employed person.

The King's Players has traveled thousands of miles, ministering through drama in over half of the United States.

In 1972 they performed in twenty different organizations and churches, including twelve different denominations, producing plays 92 times, according to Pastor Robert Van Nest.

The play to be presented at the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning at 10 will be "Pilgrim's Progress" based on John Bunyan's book by the same name.

Dr. Lloyd has conducted the tours of the King's Players for 13 years, and his wife, Professor Helen R. Lloyd, has directed the productions for the past 13 years.

At least 40,000 shallow wells help irrigate more than five million acres in Nebraska.

Pre-camp rally held in Buhl

SHOSHONE — Youth of the Shoshone Assembly of God Church Monday night attended a rally for Christ Ambassadors of the church held at Calvary Assembly of God Church, Buhl.

This is a pre-camp rally to inform the youth of the Magic Valley summer camp plans. District youth director Rev. John Anderson was present.

The camps are scheduled for the month of July and early part of August at the camp site one-half mile west of Bellevue.

Rupert Methodists gain new minister

RUPERT — Rev. Mervyn C. Shay has been appointed minister of the United Methodist Church in Rupert.

He succeeds Rev. Sidney B. Galtner, who has served the church for the past three years, and who is being assigned to the Odeh and Pine Grove churches in Oregon.

The appointments were made by Bishop Jack M. Tuell of Portland, presiding bishop of the Oregon-Idaho Conference, and were announced at the annual session in Boise.

Rev. Shay has been the minister at the United Methodist Church in Middleton for the past year. Earlier he served churches in Idaho at Nampa, Kuna, Emmett, Sweet, Murtaugh, Hansen, Filer and Ashton, and at Vale, Ore.

First Assembly sets Bible prophecy film

TWIN FALLS — A Bible prophecy film will be shown Saturday night at the First Assembly of God Church, 180 N. Locust, at 7:30 and again Sunday evening at 7.

This film entitled "A Thief in the Night" is a motion picture about what can happen when Jesus Christ returns for His body of believers.

One does not merely view this film, he experiences it. This story centers around a girl caught up in everyday living in the present, with little concern about the future. What happens when this thinking finally catches up with her provides an action-packed, unforgettable drama," says Rev. Clay Stephens, Twin Falls minister.

The fast moving pace includes a young man confronted by a deadly Asian cobra, a young girl's daring escape from jail, and a takeover by the "imperium" that regards all who are not properly identified as enemies of the system, said Stephens.

The public is invited.

Presbyterians plan barbecue in Buhl

TWIN FALLS — An area-wide barbecue will be held Sunday in Buhl for the Magic Valley Presbyterians, their families and friends.

The barbecue will be at the Frank Southwick farm, two miles south of Buhl, on the Castleford Highway. There will be posted directions to follow when entering Buhl.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I have discussed my problem with my two closest friends. One thought I was kidding. The other thought I was crazy. I assure you, I am neither. I am a 35-year-old unmarried professional woman. I was married, briefly, but had no children. I am bisexual (it makes no difference), but I prefer men. I have a very full and rewarding life and don't want for friends. Abby, the one experience I desperately want in my life is to bear a child. To me, motherhood represents the ultimate in fulfillment. One day I may marry, but not until after I retire (at age 50). By then, my child-bearing days will be long gone.

Selfish ambition?

I can always get a husband, but I can't always have a baby. I would appreciate your opinion.

WANTS MOTHERHOOD

DEAR WANTS: The biological act of bearing a child doesn't qualify a woman for motherhood. Raising a child does. After you realize your "ultimate fulfillment," what about the child? It may be a competent mother (and maybe your career) that's more important. You're not living yourself, but as I see it, you'd be using an innocent child to satisfy a selfish ambition.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old school teacher and I've just received a proposal of marriage. My first! Henry is 40 and has never married. We met last summer when he rented the apartment next to mine. He owns a small but thriving business, and is a man of good moral character. He is on the quiet side. Although Henry has not been aggressive romantically, I am sure the chemistry is right. If you know what I mean.

So what is the problem? Is the way Henry proposed to me, he said: "My dog died two weeks ago, and I haven't had a good night's sleep since because the dog always slept with me. I can't get used to sleeping alone so will you marry me?"

Abby, he wasn't kidding either. What would you do?

SINCERE

DEAR SINCERE: A proposal is a proposal, and this one is just as good as if Henry got down on his knees and gave you a 36-minute pitch. So if you want to marry him, accept. But don't let Henry get another dog, or you could wind up three in a bed.

DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to the suburbs, where we didn't know a soul. I met a woman at P.T.A., and we liked each other. She invited us to her home for a 7 p.m. buffet supper. We accepted and arrived promptly.

By 8 p.m. it was so crowded we could hardly move. At 9 p.m. there was no sign of dinner—only drinks and peanuts. It was hot, smoky and noisy. You couldn't hold a conversation with anyone. My husband, who is no big drinker, found me in the crowd and said: "Let's get out of here. I'm starving!"

I asked him to wait a while longer—but he said, "I'm leaving. Are you coming or not?"

I had no choice, so we left without saying goodbye to our hostess. Since we were all dressed up, we went to a restaurant.

The next day I phoned the hostess and told her we slipped out because my husband had a terrible headache. She sounded a little cool.

My questions: When people are invited for a 7 p.m. supper, what time should the hostess serve? Do you blame us for leaving? And do we owe them a dinner in return?

SUBURBANITE

DEAR SUB: A one-hour cocktail session is long enough. I don't blame you for leaving. And, unfortunately, you owe them a dinner invitation.

Some of the best plays in bridge look so easy that no one realizes how difficult they really are. Here is one that helped decide an important team match.

The bidding and play of the first three tricks was the same at both tables. South won the first trick with the queen of hearts, led a diamond to dummy's king and a spade back to his queen and West's king.

At the first table West led the king of hearts, South took his ace, right away, and started to run diamonds. East showed out on this lead so South could only cash his three top diamonds. He needed several spade tricks for his contract. So he proceeded to lead his last spade, the dummy's 10 and ended up with his contract.

At the other table West had taken the trouble to listen to the bidding. He was sure that South was counting on five diamond tricks and therefore West led back the eight of spades at trick four. South promptly refused the spade finesse. He thought his contract was safe. Then he came to his hand with the ace of hearts and had to go down two when the diamonds failed to break.

NFO head vows fight against SEC suit

DES MOINES (UPI) — The president of the National Farmers Organization said Wednesday the Nixon administration is pushing a civil-fraud lawsuit against the group by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Ernest A. Starn, 57, of Des Moines, said the NFO membership will "stand unite and face the challenge and leave the SEC without a leg to stand on."

The NFO is the subject of an SEC lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Des Moines earlier this week which charges the organization borrowed money from its members under false pretenses. The suit also calls for special counsel to conduct an audit of the organization's financial standings.

Staley said the group would welcome such an audit and said the NFO did not make "untrue statements" and "omissions" in borrowing more than $7 million from its members.

Staley said the Nixon administration is pushing the suit because of the NFOG position on the so-called "enemies list."

"At no time did we not keep our members and leaders well informed about the loans," Staley said. "And at no time did we solicit the loans under false pretenses. Everything was kept out in the open."

The SEC also has hinted the NFO was insolvent and was attempting to make a last-minute fund-raising effort by having members pay $75 each in delinquent dues to help the financial picture. <sup>4</sup>Staley denied the allegations and said the NFO is constantly checking out delinquent membership dues and that no special push was being made to aid the treasury.

"The NFO is operated like a church in 'a way,'" Staley said. "It's just a little hard for people to understand farmers and farmers' thinking. I suppose."

"Staley said the loans were made "within our family" and that the loans will be repaid to the NFO.

The NFO has about 8,500 members nationally and has sought to organize farmers to seek competitive prices.

Staley said, "We are confident we will come out of this on top and meet this thing."

Credit support passes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Agriculture Committee gave overruling amendments today to a $2 billion credit guarantee bill for livestock and poultry producers who claim they are in financial straits because of losses.

By a 23-2 vote, the panel adopted the bill after making several changes in a Senate-passed version including tighter limits on credit guarantees.

The committee also made loan guarantees more flexible standards which would make some non-farmers eligible for loan guarantees along with the "bonafide farmers and ranchers" included under the Senate bill.

House farm leaders said they agreed to the floor vote to speed the bill next week as part of an effort to stave off bankruptcies.

90 minute roundup

TOKYO (UPI) — A truck carrying 19 cattle collided with a truck loaded with beer Wednesday between Tokyo and Nagoya. Police said 300 bottles of beer were smashed and 19 cattle broke loose, causing a traffic snarl for miles.

Police said the highway was blocked for an hour and a half during which cows were rounded up.

July deadline set in program signup

SHOSHONE.—With less than a month until the July 15 deadline for farm program signing and certification, Lincoln County grain producers were reminded that program participation provides disaster insurance and eligibility for support loans.

James Path, executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Lincoln County, said the 1974 procedure is different from previous years when there was a sign-up period after the disaster.

"Certification period after planting. Now a farmer makes only one sign-up and certification visit to the county office and can even sign up by mail if he wishes.

Sign-up and certification are as important as ever to producers, Pat said. He pointed out that the new agricultural law includes provisions for disaster payments to participants, if their feed grain and wheat crops lost 50 percent of yield or more because of natural disaster.

Also, as in prior years, eligibility for support loans and payments is dependent on being in the program.

California facing rail car shortage

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—California's giant food industry is faced with a serious shortage of refrigerated railroad cars needed to transport perishable products during vital summer harvests, according to the state's No. 1 agricultural official.

"Trucks are picking up some of the slack," said C. Abel, director of the Department of Food and Agriculture.

"But they're very expensive which adds an awful lot to the cost of the cars now in short-cent of the cars now in short-

"The most critical area right now is the potato harvest at Bakersfield, because they can't stay in the ground much longer than that," he said.

The state's No. 1 agricultural official said.

Shortages also are being felt in the San Joaquin and Imperial valleys where grapes and vegetable hquists are being harvested.

"We've been short in both areas and we look for it to go on in the (Sacramento) valley and collect every product," he said.

Higher transportation costs, Christensen said, would have to be passed on.

"They (consumers) are paying for it now. It's costing more to get fruit and vegetables on the east coast now," he said.

The railroad car pinch, Christensen said, is nearly as bad as the one that took place in the late 1970s in the Bakersfield area.

"It's serious," he said. "We're getting about 65 per cent of our produce from California. The situation was not yet critical." But, he added, it's trying.

The refrigeration car shortage came about as railroads began to phase out their old bunker bee cars and close ice stations.

During the past two years, California farmers have expressed extreme concern over the situation, because of the vast amounts of produce exported out of state.

He was pardoned after six years.

Policewoman foils extortion attempt

SYDNEY (UPI) — A trap featuring a tall, blonde policewoman posing as a stewardess foiled a $300,000 extortion plot against Qantas Airways, police said Thursday.

The events unfolded Tuesday when a man claiming to be a member of the Black September guerrilla group telephoned the Australian national airline's security chief, Gordon Fraser, saying he would blow up two Qantas planes if he were not given a ransom.

"Listen to me, listen to me... you must get 200,000 (Australian) dollars for me within 10 hours otherwise I will blow up two bloody planes," the man reportedly told Fraser.

"We are Black September... I have a bomb... you are not dealing with kids now... listen to me... you have 10 hours only," he said.

Sex bias charged by panel

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Human Relations Commission Wednesday found Harry Jax Katz, owner of a center city nightspot, guilty of sex discrimination for advertising for "beautiful girls" to work as waitresses.

The commission directed the city solicitor's office to seek a $500 fine against Katz, owner of the Cafe Bringer. He was charged with discriminating against men in advertising for beautiful girls to wait on tables.

Katz, who once tried to open a Playboy Club here but was thwarted by the city, arrived at the hearing accompanied by four of his waitresses, all clad in revealing uniforms.

He testified that the Bringer, converted from a theater and originally opened as a gourmet restaurant with waiters, did not do well initially. However, Katz told the commission that business "picked up" since the waitresses were hired.

The commission told Katz that he could have applied for a "special exemption" allowing him to advertise for beautiful girls. Katz said he was unaware of such a stipulation.

Aluminum firms seek N power

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Six aluminum companies have loaned a group of Washington public utilities $2.84 million to assure future power supplies, a spokesman for the metals companies said today.

The loan went to Washington Public Power Supply System (WPPSS), a combine of public utility districts, to make the first of three payments to the Atomic Energy Commission to reserve a place on the AEC production schedule for nuclear fuel.

The payment is the July 1974 payment to the Lyman Harris, chairman of the executive committee of Bonneville Power Administration Industrial customers, said construction of two planned nuclear power plants would be delayed at least two years if the payment were not made on time. Current schedule calls for the plants to be producing power in 1982-83.

"All Pacific Northwest electrical customers will benefit through additional electrical capacity and savings in plant costs — through earlier competition of the two plants," Harris said.

Jack Stein, managing director of WPPSS, said, "there was no way for the region's public electrical utilities to develop

TF youth injured

TWIN FALLS — Juan Manuel Ruiz, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Ruiz, 24, Twin Falls, suffered minor cuts and bruises Thursday evening when he ran into the path of a vehicle.

City police said the accident occurred in the 100 block of Sixth Avenue East. The child was taken to the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital by his parents and the driver of the vehicle, Susan Shinde, 26, Twin Falls.

The accident occurred at 7:15 p.m. The boy was treated and released.

Fire destroys hay

FILER — An early morning fire destroyed 75 tons of first cutting hay at the Charles Crawford farm today.

The Twin Falls Sheriff's office received a report on the fire at 5:30 a.m. Two miles east and three miles north of Filer. Filer Fire Chief Jim DeVall said the hay had been stacked Thursday and the fire could have resulted from a dropped match or cigarette or possibly from spontaneous combustion in the new hay.

He said a two-ton truck parked nearby stack was also involved but flames from spreading to other buildings or property. The truck was also owned by Crawford. No estimate of loss was available.

DeVall said eight firemen participated in the fire fighting. The fire was under control and contained within two hours, he said.

Warehouse accident injures man

TWIN FALLS — Mark Hanchey, 19, Twin Falls, was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital about 8 a.m. today after suffering injuries while at work in a bean warehouse.

Hospital attendants said his injuries were apparently not serious but additional x-ray examinations were being made this morning.

City police officers said the young man was working with a crew at Hanchey's Seed Co. moving boxes of beans when one box fell, striking Hanchey.

Dismissal denied

BOISE (UPI) — The Public Utilities Commission has denied a motion to dismiss Idaho Power Company's request for a 12.5 per cent rate increase.

Paul Klops, representing Idaho Consumer Affairs, Inc., had asked for the dismissal.

He challenged continuation of the hearings on several grounds, including the fact his group did not have time to prepare for the hearings.

12 killed in Mexico collision

PUEBLA, Mexico (UPI) — A truck loaded with construction material — mostly stones — collided with an automobile today, killing 12 people and injuring 14 persons, police said.

The driver of the bus and the truck both fled the scene of the accident.

The occupants of the car which was hit first apparently escaped serious injury.

Back wages sought

BOISE (UPI) — Thirty-seven present and former employees of the Idaho State Hospital and Hospital at Nampa have brought suit in Fourth District Court to recover alleged back wages totaling $147,705.

Filed under provisions of the recently amended Fair Labor Standards Act, the suit alleges that between Feb. 1, 1967 and Jan. 1, 1972, the employees were ordered to work more than 40 hours per week and were not paid for overtime at a rate of time and one-half.

Boise man charged

BOISE (UPI) — A Federal Grand Jury has indicted Gordon Leroy Hagen, Boise, on charges of kidnapping, extortion and misappropriation of funds while an officer of the Mountain Home Air Force Base Federal Credit Union.

A 22-count indictment against Hagen alleges he converted more than $7,500 to his own use. Earlier, similar charges were brought against him but a trial was postponed because key witnesses were unable to testify.

TF okays new school site

Two alternate projects to the bid were within the budget, the "extras" could be added.

Two alternate projects in the school remodeling program have been accepted by the board already, including carpeting and adding partitions. But the board had been waiting until bids for the new school were opened to consider accepting two other alternates, which involve the construction of a P. E. locker room and teaching station at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

The board will probably decide on these alternates when a bid is accepted for the new school, sometime within the next two weeks.

Architect Peterson said he was pleased with the bids and added "in this day and age, we've been very fortunate" to receive a bid well within the estimate.

The new elementary school will be constructed behind the high school.

Dog catcher receives praise

WENDELL — It's not often that dog catchers get a bouquet — verbal or any other kind.

But at least two people are happy with the Wendell dog catcher, Jim Sec, and the operation of the dog leash law.

The City Council has received a letter of thanks from Phil and Adeline Hrelt saying "This is the first letter in 12 years we haven't had to complain about the dog leash law. It has been broken or dug up by roaming dogs, thanks to you and Mr. Sec."

The Hrelts said "We like dogs but keep our own in a fenced yard."

When the letter was read at Thursday night's council meeting, it was agreed that the leash law operation seems satisfactory — at least for the present.

Temporary procedure

Watergate limits Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russian diplomats have told American officials privately that Watergate inevitably will limit President Nixon's room for maneuver in the summit talks — but not in the way some of the President's domestic critics fear.

Critics such as Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., have voiced concern the President might make strategically "unwise" concessions in Moscow in an effort to reach agreements which would distract his focus on domestic matters.

The Russian concern is just the reverse — that Nixon, on the defensive at home, would be unwilling to concede any agreement unless it so demonstrably gave the United States such a decisive advantage that the Kremlin could never accept it.

Soviet diplomats agree with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's statement that there will be no "major engagement" on nuclear arms limitations at this summit. But while Kissinger sees this as primarily due to the complexity of the issues involved, the Russians see it as much more closely related to U.S. domestic politics.

In specific terms, Soviet and American officials are of much the same mind on what can be done at the summit. They believe that the two nuclear superpowers may agree that each will deploy only one of the two anti-ballistic missile (defensive) rings which they agreed upon in 1972. In each country, there appears to be a feeling that the cost of the second ring of defensive missiles would be exorbitant for the effect it will achieve.

Both sides talk also about the possibility of agreeing to ban underground testing of nuclear weapons — above a certain size. The Russians also say they expect to sign a new and broader trade agreement which will serve as a basic document for commerce between the two countries, although Nixon has yet to make good on his 1972 promise to give Russia quarterly trade treatment enjoyed by other major commercial nations.

Caravan to promote fete

BOHLE — Other Magic Valley communities will have an opportunity Saturday to view queen and junior princess candidates for the Buhl Sagebrush Days.

A caravan of vehicles carrying the young ladies will leave Buhl at 9 a.m. for Hagerman, Bliss, Gooding, Wendell, Jerome and Twin Falls. In addition to traveling the main streets of the communities, the girls will be interviewed by radio and television stations.

They will stop in Twin Falls for lunch and continue to Filer and back to Buhl.

Candidates for Sagebrush Days queen include Paula Galloway, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun Galloway, Twin Falls; Ange Robinson, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Robinson, Tuttle; Betty Schnell, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schnell, Rogers; Lucinda Schutt, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Schutt, Twin Falls.

Robert Freeman, queen contest chairman, said a number of additional entries may be received by Saturday.

Junior princess candidates include Camille Blastock, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blastock, Filer; Robin Ford, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ford, Twin Falls; Suzanne Gracich, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Gracich, Buhl; Debbie Grandjean, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Grandjean, Twin Falls; Debby Herrett, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Herrett, Filer.

Unit to finish public projects

'COOLIN' (UPI) — Idaho Army National Guard engineers, nearing the end of two weeks at Priest Lake, expect to have a series of public improvements finished by the time they leave camp this weekend.

Guardians from Bonners Ferry completed a new playground at the state's Indian Creek Park earlier this week. Last week, men from the same unit finished a new half mile trail at US state facility.

According to Maj. Milton J. Hengel, more men from the same unit are 85 per cent finished with construction of new playground equipment at a building at the nearby Priest Lake Elementary School. Maj. Hengel said the project, begun late last week, should be completed Friday.

Two bridges the guardians have been building are nearing completion. One provides a traffic bypass around the Indian Creek Park campground area, and the second bridge, designed to give fire fighters access to remotest mountain areas they do not now have, is under construction at Lost Creek.

Maj. Hengel said engineers from Moscow and Orofino, who are laying a new gravel surface on about seven miles of a road on the east side of Priest Lake, would have the project finished by the time summer camp ends.

The 300 guardians camped near Priest Lake will leave Saturday morning for return trips to Lewiston, Moscow, Orofino, Bonners Ferry and Coeur d'Alene.

THE RAW sewage that was running above ground at Twin Falls City Airport has been temporarily taken care of by putting in piping and covering it with gravel. Harry Merrick said that upon receiving federal funds the problem will be more completely fixed.

Albion alumni reunion set

ALBION — About 200 alumni are expected to attend the reunion Saturday of a college whose last graduating class was in 1951.

Among those attending the reunion will be Mrs. John (Anna) Hayner, Twin Falls, author of four books, who was the earliest graduate at the last year's gathering. She received her diploma 69 years ago.

The reunion will be in Albion in the same building that the alumni occupied as students at the Albion State Normal School. The name was later changed to the Southern Idaho College of Education.

The college was founded in 1884 as a normal school. Economic reasons forced the college to close in 1951. The city of Albion has leased the buildings of the campus.

Contract OK'd

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Twenty-four members of Teamster's Local 93 ratified a two-year contract with Aerjet Co., Idaho Falls, Wednesday night.

Under the contract, workers will receive a 10.5 per cent minimum wage increase plus a nine cent an hour cost of living raise, the first year.

During the second year, workers will get an additional 50 cents an hour raise and an extra holiday.

Developer to post bond

HAILEY — John Koppes said today he will post a $175,000 surety bond preparatory to development of Indian Creek Ranch north of Hailey.

Koppes has attempted to give 2,000 acres of the ranch to the county for the privilege of selling and developing 310 adjacent acres. The Blaine County commissioners told him last week they will not accept his gift.

The county ordinance states roads must be paved by the developer in new subdivisions. Koppes has said he is unable to pay to pave the nearly seven miles of access road through the area.

Koppes also has asked the commissioners to waive the planning and zoning final approval

Union named in suit

Further negotiations, were scheduled for today in Boise to attempt a settlement of the strike which went into its ninth week Thursday.

According to union and Simplot sources, a proposal for a settlement may be presented by the company at the meeting.

According to union officials, the proposal is expected to include a provision for an open shop in the Heyburn and Caldwell plants, a proposal which the union has said is unacceptable.

If the proposal is "laid on the table" today, the Heyburn plant union members are expected to vote to accept it or reject it at a meeting Sunday morning in Burley.

Union officials said Thursday they hoped for rejection if the proposal is written as they expect it to be.

A permanent injunction against the union was granted in Third District Court this week in Caldwell. The injunction against mass picketing by the union was similar to one granted in May in Fifth District Court in Rupert.

The Simplot Co. filed both actions against the union after alleged acts of coercive mass picketing and intimidation of employees who are working in the plants during the strike.

Both injunctions specified the number of pickets who are allowed in certain areas at one time and prohibit acts of violence and intimidation.

According to Simplot officials, the Heyburn plant is running at 65 to 70 per cent production capacity, with 450 to 500 non-supervisory personnel in the plant.

The company lists about 225 employees who have returned to their jobs since the strike began May 2, including those who have resigned from the union and some who were on 45-day probation when the strike started.

The Caldwell plant is said to have 12 of its 18 processing lines operating with about 800 non-employees. Company officials said they have had more than 180 letters of resignation from the union. The company says it has sent letters to more than 70 employees of the Caldwell plant saying that they have been permanently replaced.

The end-of-the-production run is expected in the second week of July.

The issue of whether the company will keep its new employees when a settlement is reached with the union has been a major sticking point in negotiations. The union has repeatedly told its members that they will all have their old jobs back. The company has said it will not let its new employees go.

Evel offers reward

TWIN FALLS — Evel Knievel has offered a $5,000 reward to anyone who can find and recover his Skycycle X-1, an unnamed prototype which fluttered into the Snake River last November during a test jump.

According to one of Knievel's Twin Falls attorneys, Jay D. Sudweeks, the motorcycle daredevil seeks to recover "valuable recording instruments" aboard the missing craft.

The unnamed Skycycle X-1 was launched Nov. 3 from Knievel's launch ramp on the south side of the Snake River Canyon about two miles northeast of Twin Falls.

Witnesses said the craft left the ramp at about 200 miles per hour, then began to turn over before seeming to "flutter" into the Snake River about 500 feet below.

The craft reportedly cost $25,000. A search for the missing skycycle could not discover the craft.

According to Sudweeks, the reward is good until Aug. 1.

Following the test of the prototype skycycle, Evel decided to increase the takeoff speed to 350 miles per hour and increase the angle of the take-off ramp to 54 degrees.

Knievel plans to try to make it across the 1,765-foot-wide canyon aboard a new vehicle, Skycycle X-2 on Sept. 8.

Wendell water use cooperation urged

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

WENDELL — Wendell City residents were urged to cooperate in observing the days and times they use irrigation water Thursday night.

Mayor Otto Lenke said at the council meeting during a discussion of the problem that everyone knows when he should use the water.

There were several reports of individuals who say they do not have any head of water when it is their turn to use the ditch water.

Councilman Lloyd Little reported that an irrigation flume on the George Serr farm has broken for the fifth time this spring. The pipe was required the next day, Little said, with no crop damage to Serr, but the problem of adequately rerouting the irrigation water across Serr's farm because of construction of the new city sewer laggon has plagued the city for some months.

Mayor Lenke reiterated Thursday night that the problem is the responsibility of the U-I-R Engineering firm, which has been hired by the city to engineer new sewer system.

Councilman said that according to North Side Canal Co. personnel the problem will not be solved unless two and preferably three air vents are installed in the flume.

Councilman Harold Simmerly reported that a trailer house owned by Leo Dawson will have to be moved when Seventh Avenue East is opened. Simmerly said he will discuss the problem involved with Dawson and the council agreed to work with him in granting needed variances in other business, councilmen.

— heard a report from Sincerely on negotiations with Power Co. regarding installation of mercury vapor lights at the city park. He said it will be some time before they can be installed.

— authorized Claude Strickland, city works superintendent, to hire someone to mow ditches and streets in the city.

— set July 25 as the hearing date for a request from Rick Thompson for a variance on the city ordinance requiring seven feet distance from buildings to the property line. Thompson said he wants to build an attached garage on the east side of his house which would come to four feet of the property line.

— discussed problems of maintenance at the city dump.

— agreed to a proposal reported by Jim Sec, dogcatcher, that the city turn over handling of stray dogs to the Humane Society at Jerome. Cost to the city will be $2 per day per animal and it "will take the pressure off us," councilman said.

— decided to charge $5, the full yearly charge, for persons who have to purchase garbage hauling permits throughout the year.

— set rates on bulk water at the city dispenser at 45 cents per hundred gallons. This is on pump water used for irrigation purposes.

Guns, knives and ropes, these are the most common means of self destruction among men who go the suicide route. Gas, sleeping pills and poison, these are the most common among women. Or so reports a medical statistician. Claim is further made that three times more men than women actually commit suicide although three times more women than men attempt it.

Q. "WHAT are zoonoses?"
A. Diseases that humans can catch from animals.

TWENTY FIVE per cent of this country's population is going to school. Good.

BOOKIES

The U.S. Post Office should be authorized by law to set up a national off-track horse race betting agency. Every mail carrier who so desires should be licensed as a bookie to collect bets. The operation should be subject to continuing congressional audit. And, the proceeds should go to roll back mail rates. That is the interesting contention of a political philosopher who has not yet won any elections. How this plan would be executed—in state, which outlay such action remains unexplained.

"CLOSE COVER before striking" is a more widely printed four-word sentence than is "In God We Trust." That has been reported repeatedly. But certainly you now know the four words that appear on every U.S. Coin. Wait, they're: "United States of America."

FIFTEEN per cent of all the drivers get 76 per cent of all the traffic tickets. Or such be the indication from one study of the matter.

—VOLLEYBALL—

Note it claimed that volleyball players prefer that game because they don't want to take the individual responsibility for winning or losing. What bunk! Volleyball players prefer that game because it gives them each an equal chance at every playing position.

ITEM NO. 961C in our Ain't Nature Wonderful file describes that bird known as the kingfisher. It perches quite still at water's edge to concentrate on the whereabouts of fish. Thus surely it would be exposed to other birds of prey behind it, if it did not display on the back of its head most realistic looking false eyes.

EVEN THOUGH this country's cooks aren't particularly renowned for the spiciness of their dishes, it's a fact they use about 33 per cent of the world's pepper to feed only about 6 per cent of the world's population.
